

Ms. Sapna Kumari, Assistant Professor

Sapna.kumari@lic.du.ac.in

Sapna Kumari is an Assistant Professor in the department of English, Lady Irwin college. She is also pursuing PhD in the department of English, Delhi University on the intersectional critique of the published/unpublished poems of Maya Angelou in the wake of Third wave and Fourth wave feminism. She has over eight years working experience in college teaching and more than three years in school teaching. She has taught in Miranda House and was associated with the Policy Centre and Gender Lab of the college as a mentor guiding student's research. Before joining the University of Delhi, she worked as a full-time lecturer in English at Patna women's college, an autonomous institution. A certified Digital Language Lab trainer to work with the software of Words Worth for English proficiency, her areas of interest/subject include Gender Studies, Feminist theory & literature, Young Adult literature, British literature, European classical, English language and communication skills, literary theory and criticism, creative writing in English, Indian English Literature, Popular Culture, Third world Cinema & literature, and American literature. She has published around 9 research papers and 7 book chapters and contributed book reviews for the Financial Express. Her last three publications are UGC CARE listed/SCOPUS indexed/Indexed in international database. One of her recent publications with Springer has been listed in the WHO Covid-19- Global literature on coronavirus disease resource 2021 and the other one is the most cited/viewed paper in the journal's edition that was published with (T & F journal of visual literacy 2022) . She is also on the board of reviewers for Taylor and Francis (SCOPUS) international Journal of Gender studies. She has been a member of the Programme Management Committee for the University of Delhi Centenary celebrations and actively contributed in the working committee for NAAC, AQAR, Annual report, and other institutional documentation during her service.

<https://www.researchgate.net/profile/Sapna-Kumari-8>